Stilton Studios secure three year Web Design and Branding contract

19 October 2006

Bournemouth and Brighton Based Web Design and Multimedia Company Stilton Studios have secured a three year contract for the South West Lifelong Learning Network Website and Branding.

Building on their continuing strong links with the Education sector, the Stilton Studios team led by Sam Jacobs have already created and developed a large number of Educational Websites and CD-Roms as well as Websites for small businesses.

Belinda Payne - South West Lifelong Learning Network Co-ordinator says;
"The South West Lifelong Learning Network is a new partnership that hopes to create innovative opportunities and improved quality of choice for learners to engage with Higher Education. We have worked with Stilton Studios on various Educational projects and are always pleased with their professional, friendly and innovative approach to all their work. We are extremely pleased to have Stilton Studios on board creating our on-line presence."
